The Sex Factor (Relationship &amp; Sex Education Training)

Chailey Heritage Foundation is one of the UK's leading centres for children and young people with complex neurodisabilities. There is a general misconception that Relationship & Sex Education (RSE) is not needed for these children and young people and we have found limited adapted RSE for them to learn, stay safe, understand their bodies, relationships and sexuality in full. We have developed a unique way of teaching this difficult subject and have created a user-friendly toolkit consisting of training sessions and resources for teachers and staff to deliver quality RSE to this group of youngsters.

Paediatric seating: Do we have to choose posture over function for the complex client?

With the important focus on 24-hour postural management, there are occasionally times when clinicians wonder how to prioritise between competing goals of posture and function for complex clients. In this talk we will explore the intricate relationship between these two elements and decode how to set-up a seat to best meet needs. Learning outcomes:

- Understand the roots of 3 non-symmetrical postures
- Review how to set-up a seat to maximise function without causing other postural issues
- Recognise how the SATCo assessment can help determine functional goals
- Examine options where difficult choices have to be made in postural management

Encouraging active movement in children with complex needs

Active movement has the most evidence behind it for preventing, stabilising, maintaining and reducing contractures and deformities like scoliosis, knee flexion contractures and foot deformities. But active movement can be difficult for children who have severe learning disabilities, may be non-verbal, require hoisting and large pieces of equipment, have other sensory issues such as deafness or blindness, and require specific moving and handling techniques. We have lots of experience with these children and we know that active movement is possible! This seminar will look into ways of encouraging children with complex needs to actively move in the following ways: Gait trainers, trikes, swimming pools, trunk strengthening, and specialist pieces of equipment such as the Glider by Atelier Rehab, the MyWay with pedals, and the Motomed, which can all be used for passive movement. We will explore 'cause and effect' a skill almost all children have regardless of their learning disability, and how we can use cause and effect with gait trainers and trikes, to encourage active movement. We will also explore the benefits of active standing, and how we can adapt equipment to facilitate active.

Meeting the new guidelines for children with disabilities

Children and adults with physical disabilities spend much of their lives in passive positions with the direct consequence of deteriorating health. This session will provide current knowledge to support evidence-based justification for the clinical use of adaptive tricycles. Learning objectives: Identify the benefits of adaptive cycling for health as described by the ICF in the context of the child-centred educational health plan model. Explore and recognise up-to-date research outcomes with adaptive cycling for individuals with physical disabilities. Discuss product solutions for adaptive cycling that meet specific medical conditions to enable opportunities for physical activity in home and community

Top Tips for Toilet Training

Many families need support to introduce their children to the skills that children need to learn to use the toilet. This is even more likely to be the case when children have physical, learning or developmental disabilities or sensory differences. This session is designed to help families and professionals know when and how to start working on the skills needed for children to successfully toilet train. It will include practical strategies, aim to address some of the difficulties, including when children do not sustain progress. Suggestions for useful resources will also be provided.

Transition to adulthood for children with autism; Behaviours that challenge and strategies to help

Transitions come in different sizes and impact on individuals in different ways. There are small transitions, for example from one activity to the next; medium transitions like getting a new teacher or big transitions, such as the transition to adulthood. Accompanying these transitions, many autistic people may engage in behaviours that challenge. This presentation will explore strategies to support individuals through these transitions and reduce the chance of behaviours of concern creating a barrier to successful transitions.

Outreach Consultant,
